

The common bile duct (red arrow) and the intrahepatic bile ducts (not pictured) are dilated because of a mass in the head of the pancreas (not pictured) that has also caused dilatation of the pancreatic duct (not pictured). We can take a closer look at these other findings in class.

